

Law firm moves to new Birmingham office

A law firm has moved its Birmingham team to a new office.

MFG Solicitors has relocated from the city's Jewellery Quarter to a new base in Waterloo House, Waterloo Street.

The 2,500 sq ft facility has been fitted out with private meeting rooms, breakout areas and open plan desk space.

The firm's chairman Iain Morrison said: "Our move to Waterloo House represents another new and exciting chapter for the firm."

"It's been six years since we moved into the Birmingham market and since then we have significantly grown our offering and presence, helped by adding further expertise to our team.

“That has ultimately allowed us to take on additional clients, especially on the corporate, commercial property and employment sides.

“The new office is right in the middle of the city but, more importantly, it’s really accessible and has the capacity to cope with our further growth in the months and years ahead. The feedback from clients has already been extremely positive.”

The practice has offices in Worcestershire and Shropshire and entered the Birmingham market in 2018 when it acquired Pearson Rowe.
