

Major jobs plans revealed by online mortgage broker bought by Confused.com owner

An online mortgage broker has revealed plans to hire more than 50 new members of staff after it was acquired by the owner of Uswitch, Money.co.uk and Confused.com at the end of last year.

Manchester-headquartered Mojo Mortgages currently employs 74 employees and was snapped up by RVU in December.

At the time the deal was completed, the business had just over 60 members of staff and also had an office in Macclesfield.

Mojo Mortgages said it expects the new hires to join the business before the end of 2022.

CEO and co-founder Richard Hayes said: “The last six months has been a whirlwind for Mojo Mortgages as we have embarked on the first stage of our scaling plans as part of RVU.

“We have been able to help more people than ever before on their mortgage journey at a time where the property market is as hot as it has been in many years.

“We’re now in a position to supercharge our growth efforts as we head into the second half of the year and the recruitment of new talent will be key to achieving this.

“As the rising cost of living continues to impact homeowners and prospective first-time buyers across the country, we want to invest heavily into our advice and application teams to ensure we continue to put customers in the best position when navigating the mortgage process.”
