

New London Property News website from Simon Halabi

An exciting new Property Focused Website and associated digital media platforms has launched at London Property News designed purely to throw the spotlight on the magnificent properties in, and vibrant property market of, London.

Sponsored and supported by Simon Halabi, a now-retired international property developer and investor, the website will feature articles, editorials, and opinion pieces from across the City, and it's hoped it will soon become the go-to news site for Londoners wanting to keep in touch with the property market in their City.

Speaking exclusively about the launch, Simon Halabi says: 'I've spent a lifetime working in the property world, not just in London but around the world, so sponsoring and supporting the establishment of this great new venture was an obvious choice for me when the opportunity presented itself.'

Head to the website to check it out for yourself, and make sure you follow them on their blogging/digital channels to keep up-to-date with everything they talk about.