

Greggs stores to take payments again soon after card and cash systems crash

Greggs said it expects to be able to take card and cash payments again soon after the bakery chain experienced issues with its tills.

In a statement, the bakery chain said it expects “the issue to be fully resolved shortly”.

They added: “We apologise for the inconvenience this may have caused to our customers.”

Earlier on Wednesday morning, Greggs said it was “working to resolve this as soon as possible” after issues prevented them from selling goods and saw shops closed.

Users on X around the country reported that their local branches were shut or heavily affected, with some stores asking people to place mobile orders.

“Greggs in Westminster closed. Problem with tills,” one person wrote, while another added: “Greggs this morning cash only! Sitting here with my coffee watching almost everyone have to walk out.”

X

This content is provided by X, which may be using cookies and other technologies.

To show you this content, we need your permission to use cookies.

You can use the buttons below to amend your preferences to enable X cookies or to allow those cookies just once.

You can change your settings at any time via the Privacy Options.

Unfortunately we have been unable to verify if you have consented to X cookies.

To view this content you can use the button below to allow X cookies for this session only.

Enable Cookies

Allow Cookies Once

Another person said: “Heart goes out to all those with hangovers this morning who were unable to buy anything at Greggs.”

More on Greggs

Greggs staff to share £17.6m bonus pot as bakery chain makes bumper profits

Greggs plots Cornwall expansion – in move that could spark battle with local pasty makers

Greggs wins battle to sell late-night sausage rolls in London's Leicester Square

Related Topics:

- greggs

It comes after “technical issues” affected Sainsbury’s in store contactless payments and online delivery services at the weekend, causing chaos for shoppers.

Tesco cancelled some online orders too after suffering issues.

Advertisement

Last week, McDonald’s customers were turned away from restaurants around the world, including in the UK, after the fast food chain was also hit by major IT problems.

Greggs operates more than 2,450 shops across the UK. It’s unclear how many stores were affected.