

Labour says it will not bail out bankrupt councils

Labour will not bail out bankrupt councils, the shadow chancellor has said.

“I’m not going to be able to fix all the problems straightaway,” Rachel Reeves said during an interview on Sky News’ Sunday Morning With Trevor Phillips.

Her comments follow Birmingham City Council effectively declaring bankruptcy after being hit with a £760m bill to settle equal pay claims.

In response, the council approved plans to hike council tax by 21% over the next two years, as well as £300m in cuts over the same period.

Politics Live: Why Labour risks looking like Tories in a red rosette this week

Please use Chrome browser for a more accessible video player

17:14

Watch the full interview

Asked if she would bail out the councils, allow them to raise taxes or tell them to sink or swim, Ms Reeves said: “I’m under no illusions about the scale of the challenge that I will inherit if I become chancellor later this year and I need to be honest with people.”

She added: “My focus is on reforming the planning system to get Britain building again...

“If we do those things, we will bring in the tax revenue and we will be able to invest in public services again. There’s no shortcuts. That is the way.”

During the Sky News interview, Ms Reeves also said scrapping the non-dom tax status is “an utter humiliation for this government”.

Advertisement

“The last budget of this parliament – they’ve had 14 years and they use this moment to close a non-dom tax loophole that everyone has been aware of for years,” she added.

Image:

Shadow chancellor Rachel Reeves and Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer. Pic: PA

Read more:

Minister fails to name which groups or individuals will fall under new definition of extremism

Boris Johnson flew to Venezuela for talks with president

Ministers urge government to increase defence spending in highly unusual intervention

Spreaker

This content is provided by Spreaker, which may be using cookies and other technologies.

To show you this content, we need your permission to use cookies.

You can use the buttons below to amend your preferences to enable Spreaker cookies or to allow those cookies just once.

You can change your settings at any time via the Privacy Options.

Unfortunately we have been unable to verify if you have consented to Spreaker cookies.

To view this content you can use the button below to allow Spreaker cookies for this session only.

Enable Cookies

Allow Cookies Once

Click to subscribe to the Sky News Daily wherever you get your podcasts

Other councils have effectively declared bankruptcy

Several other councils have effectively declared bankruptcy, with Hackney Council issuing a section 114 notice in 2000 and Northamptonshire County Council following suit in 2018.

Be the first to get Breaking News

Install the Sky News app for free

sky

news

Croydon Council issued its third section 114 notice in two years in November 2022. Thurrock in Essex made the same move in December 2022 after it got into difficulties over borrowing large sums to invest in solar energy.

Woking issued a section 114 in June 2023 due to what it said was “an extremely serious financial shortfall owing to its historic investment strategy that has resulted in unaffordable borrowing, inadequate steps to repay that borrowing and high values of irrecoverable loans”.