

War in Ukraine, women in the workplace, and the merchandise industry

As Ukrainians mark a year since Russia's invasion, Ian is joined by Ukraine's deputy economy minister, and the chief executive of the Ukrainian steelmaker Metinvest – owners of the Azovstal steel mill in Mariupol, which was besieged by Russian soldiers last May.

He also speaks to the chief executive at Allbright and the chair of Going Plural about widening career opportunities for women.

Plus, he looks into a new global platform and service for the merchandise industry.

Listen and subscribe to The Ian King Business Podcast here

Advertisement